Scope and Content Note

The papers of John Marshall Harlan (1833-1911) span the period from 1810 to 1971, with the bulk of the material covering the years 1861-1911. The collection consists of family correspondence, general correspondence, subject files, financial papers, legal files, and miscellany, and is divided into two parts, each of which has been processed separately. The second part also includes a group of legal and financial papers belonging to Harlan's father, James Harlan (1800-1863).

Most of the family correspondence in the Harlan Papers is found in the first part of the collection, although a few family letters are interfiled in the general correspondence section of Part II. The majority of these letters were exchanged between Harlan and his wife, Malvina Shanklin Harlan; his sons, James S. Richard D., and John Maynard Harlan; and his brother-in-law, James G. Hatchitt.

The general correspondence, located in both parts of the papers, contains information relating to Harlan's legal practice in Kentucky in the early 1870s when he was in partnership with Benjamin H. Bristow and John Newman, and to his political activities in Kentucky during 1876. Especially significant for information about the Ulysses S. Grant administration are letters from Benjamin H. Bristow written between 1867 and 1877. In 1876 Harlan advocated Bristow's candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination and placed his name before the convention in Cincinnati in June of that year. Correspondence relating to Bristow's candidacy and, after the convention, to the election of Hayes, is primarily with local political figures in Kentucky. Letters relative to Harlan's appointment to the Supreme Court of the United States are found in both segments of general correspondence. Part I also contains letters written by Henry Clay to Harlan's father, James, from 1841 to 1850. Significant correspondents include, in Part I, James G. Blaine, J. J. Crittenden, David Davis, Walter Q. Gresham, Benjamin Harrison, Rutherford B. Hayes, and Augustus E. Willson, and in Part 2, J. B. Bowman, Benjamin H. Bristow, George C. Drane, John W. Finnell, William Cassius Goodloe, John Rodman, and Bluford Wilson.

After the election of 1876 Harlan was appointed a member of the commission to settle the disputed State election in Louisiana, and documents relating to this and to his role as American representative in the Bering Sea arbitration in 1892-1893 can be found in the subject file in Part I. Material in this series also relates to his service with the 10th Kentucky Volunteer Infantry and his tenure as professor of law at the George Washington University Law School. Information concerning his career can also be gleaned from the materials accumulated by his grandson, the second Justice Harlan.

The legal file in Part I contains information on Harlan's law career from his early days of practice through his years on the Supreme Court, with documents relating to some of the cases with which he was associated as attorney or as judge. In Part II, the legal file consists of contracts, notes, receipts, and a few briefs relating to cases or clients. A 5,000-item collection of Harlan papers held by the University of Louisville Law School pertains largely to his Supreme Court career.

Copies of memoirs of John Marshall Harlan recalling events dating back to the 1850s constitute most of the speeches and writings. The miscellany series contains the "One Day Diary" for August 21, 1877, notebooks, biographical material, photocopies of Harlan family papers collected from other repositories by Alan F. Westin, Harlan's biographer, and Richard D. Harlan's nine-volume compilation of Justice Harlan's published Supreme Court opinions. Included in the miscellany section of Part II is an autobiographical letter from Harlan to his son, Richard, written in July 1911, covering the relationship between Henry Clay and James Harlan prior to the Civil War and explaining John Marshall Harlan's connection with events which had some bearing on Kentucky's position during the Civil War. This segment also contains a small group of financial papers belonging to Harlan's brother, James Harlan, Jr.

The papers of his father, James Harlan, at the end of Part II, span the years 1810 to 1863, and are primarily financial, although a few legal items are included. They also contain certificates covering James Harlan's election to the United States House of Representatives in 1835 and 1837, his appointment by Millard Fillmore as one of the commissioners to ascertain and settle private claims in California in 1851, his commission to prepare an abridged and simplified civil and criminal code of practice for the Commonwealth of Kentucky in 1850, his appointments and elections as attorney general of Kentucky in 1850, 1851, and 1855, and his appointment as secretary of state of Kentucky in 1841. His most prominent correspondent is Alexander H. H. Stuart, Secretary of the Interior from 1850 to 1853.
